ROBBED OF $30,000.

A Roving Dundreary's First American Experience.

How "Big Albany" Fished a Fortune Out of a Gaping Pocket-The Victim's Paralyzing Coolness—Skillful Detective Work—The Millionaire's Antecedents and Movements.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—A large gentle-man, wearing a tweed suit, a jaunty little round hat and single glass, landed in America the other day. His transers were loose, and the pocket on the right hand side was very ample and very deep, after a design of the owner. A leather wallet of large size slipped easily into this pocket. The gentleman was W. W. Taylor, a millionaire tourist from London. At the foot of the gang plank, on the pier, stood a crowd of people awaiting the tourists. Among them was another large man, who wore dark clothes, had a clean shaven face, and is known to the police as "Albany." The two men came together in the crowd and Albany easily slid the large leather wallet ont of the ample pocket and retired to a beer saloon on Tenth avenue, inst below Twenty-third street. The barkeeper advanced $50 on the wallet, and Albany, with his friend and assistant, James, otherwise known as "Red" Kelly, went off for a day's trip to Coney Island. Meanwhile, Mr. Taylor had driven to the Fifth Avenue Hotel, where he was assigned to room 207. After he had, signed the register, Mr. Taylor said casually to the elerk: "I've no doubt whatever that you have a competent police officer ut hand."

"Oh, yes; do you want to see the town?" "Oh, I don't mind after dinner, but I cared to see him more particularly just now about a fellow who robbed me of what in your money would be $30,000."

"Would you oblige me by sending the officer up to my room at your leisure?" Then Mr. Taylor, who was still appurently the most unconcerned of men, strolled toward the elevator.

"How much, said Mr. Prior," looking very hard into the clerk's eye.

"Thirty thousand dollars, and he went

"Well, he was the coolest specimen of a man I ever met," said the detective as he stood in front of the Fifth Avenue II rel. He turned out to be a thoroughbred, but was suspicious of him to the last. When went in he smiled pleasantly, and said: O ollicer, I've been a bit unfortunate; I was robbed at the pier of my wallet, which contained three £10,000 drafts, my personal papers and a letter of identification.' 'What bank were the drafts drawn on?' Pure Drugs, Teas, Spices, Patent Medicines, tye Stuffs, Offs and Vormisbes, the translated to-says I. 'Upon my word you'll think it very stupid of me, but I can't remember; they are from the London and Westminster Bank.' 'What,' I says, 'you don't know the name of a bank on which all that money is drawn?' 'No. You see all my papers were in the wallet. We might easily go to the bank and stop payment of the drafts if I knew the name of the bank; but I can't, for the life of me, recall it-very stupid. By the by, the theft leaves me quite penniless until my portmonnaie arrives.' I thought he meant the wallet when he said portmonnais, and decided that it was a skin game. I expected him to brace the house for a loan when he said: 'Perhaps you'd better have my portmonnaic brought up stairs. It is the smaller of the two bags by the desk.' I sent down for the bag, and when he opened it I'm blessed if one part of it wasn't entirely filled with money in £5, £10 and £25 notes. There must have been several thousand dollars there. Then I saw that the man's carelessness was not assumed, and I told him that it was dangerous to leave his money lying loosely around in that way. 'Oh, I don't believe all Americans are thieves, despite my first experience,' said he, with a jolly laugh. 'Besides, we have a system in England of having a list taken of the numbers of notes when we take them out of the bank, and if they are stolen, their numbers are published and they become valueless. The scheme won't work for a cent here, said I, and then I took the money down to the safe. After that I sent the following advertisement down town:

The pocket-book lost in Twenty-third street car, with papers and passports of Taylor, will be negotiated for, in strict confidence, room 27, Fifth Avenue Hotel. "I think the pocket-book was lost in a Twenty-third street car, because I knew that the same gang that worked the cars worked the piers, and wanted them to know that I suspected them. Mr. Taylor seemed somewhat interested in the case, but by no means as much as I thought he would be. Well, I got no answer to the advertisement, and the next day I went down among the Twenty-third street gang. They are the worst gan; of pickpockets in the city, and there seem to be no end to them. I know them all. From Mr. Taylor's description of one man in the crowd I knew that 'Big Albany' had been on the pier when the wallet was stolen. I went for Albany and his partner, Kelly, but both were absent. This was suspicious. When they aren't at work, they're hiding or spending their boodle. I was rather sure that the pickpockets would be ufraid to present the drafts for fear we would nub them, and 1 kept ut work. I discovered Red Kelly, and after a little talk succeeded in seeing Albany. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Taylor got his wallet. He smiled quietly, lighted a fresh cigar and went out for a walk, but he left the wallet in the safe. He went to Philadelphia, where he is to meet a party of Englishmen. They are going out to the copper mines on Lake Superior, where Mr. Taylor is very largly interested."

A Day's Records of Wickedness and Minhap.

GREENWOOD, S. C., Sept. 6 .- A colored man descended into a well for the purpose of cleaning it out. The well had been covered for about two years, and shortly after the negro went down the presence of noxious gas was discovered by those on the surface, but too late to save the man's life. Another negro went down to rescue the lirst, but he also was immediately overcome by the poisonous gas. A third colored man now descended and succeeded in tying the second one to the rope, but before he could seeme the first one he likewise began to grow faint and giving the signal, the two men were quickly drawn up, but in an insensible condition. Restoratives were at once applied, and every effort was made to resuseitate the unfortunate men, but without avail, and both died in about an hour. The body of the first man who descended the well was recovered by means of grap-

INDIGNANT AT THE CORONER. Bringeport, Conn., Sept. 6.-Indignation is expressed over the delay and pretended secreey of the t'oroner's investigation in case of Mrs. Rose Clark Ambler, who was murdered after being outraged. Coroner Jovee knows there can be no secreey where witnesses leave the room and tell all they have seen and heard and repeat their own testimony. He says that tour persons are distinctly accused of the crime. The testimony certainly points very strongly to the divorced husband.

Erie. Ente, Sept. 6 .- 1. S. Starbird, a mail robber and an escaped convict from the Kansas City jail, was captured at un early hour at the house of his vife's father in Erie county by Chief of Police Leach, of Corry. Starbird's wife had been postmistress in a small town near Kansas City, and three years ago her husband was detected in the act of robbing the United States mails. He was convicted and was awaiting sentence pending an neute attack of pneumonia. Watening his opportunity he escaped from the jail hospital at a time when he was supposed to be on the verge of dissolution, and has been a refugee ever since. Leach had been on his track for two years, and finally ran him down with a posse. The reward is $1,000, which Leach has gone on to claim. Starbird waived a requisition.

MAINE DROUGHT. -Great Dumage From Continued Lack

of Rain. Macmas, ME., Sept. 6 .- The protracted drought is doing much damage in Washington com ty, no rain, not even an occasional shower, having fallen in this vicinity for nearly six weeks. If continued much longer the loss to the agricultural interest must be great, and the farmers are complaining bitterly. The old proverb among Maine humbermen, that the tire is more destructive to the timber lands than the axe, is being verified, for forest fires are raging in many sections, carrying desolation in their paths. An extensive fire on some fine timber land near Millbridge, owned by John S. Wallace, Jr., is causing much apprehension, and hundreds of men ure employed in staying its ravages. The destruction of township No. 10, which has not been operated on for fifty years, is A Bride Robbed and Brutally Abandoned.

An Astonishing Case of Blackguard. ism-The Deliberate Plan of a School Teacher to Steal a Could. lng Girl's Money-Left Alone and I'rlendless Among Strangers.

JACKSONVILLE, ILL., Sept. 6.—An aggravated case of wife-abandonment has just come to light, creating a protound sensation in this community. The facts are about as follows: On Wednesday of last week a young man who had taught school at Franklin, in this county, the past two years, named H. M. Coleman, was married in this city to Miss Lizzie Sanderson, a highly esteemed young lady of this community. Both parties were well connected, and were given a happy wedding. They left here the same evening for Chicago, where they expected to stop over for a few days and then go on to Tacoma, where they would make their future home. Arriving at Chicago, they put up at the Atlantic hotel, on Van Buren street. While at the hotel the young und contiding bride placed some $200 of her own money in the hands of her newly made hisband for side-keeping. All went well until Friday. In the afternoon of that day Coleman told his wife he had business to transact down town, and would return immediately. He left her in her room at the hotel, and that is the last she has seen of him. All night the young wife watched for the coming of her husband, but in vain. Saturday morning a search was made among the business houses where he stated he had business, but none of them had seen him. Subsequent investigation showed that he had not only robbed his bride of the $900, but had stolen the baggage cheeks from her purse and had taken the baggage and departed for parts unknown. Colemun came to this county from Oswego county, New York. It is alleged that he planned the marriage expressly to get possession of the young lady's money. The wronged bride returned to her home in this city Sunday, and is almost crazy over the affair. It Coleman should be eaught in would not be safe to bring him to this city in the present state of excitement.

CHINAMEN NATURALIZED. Three Philadelphia Celestials Take Out Their Papers.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6,-Lee You, Lee lng and R. Bund, three friends of Frank Duna, the Americanized Chinaman who the other day formally declared his intention of becoming a cit zen of the United States, have followed his example and executed their first papers in the office of the Prothonotary of the Common Pleus Court. They all appeared in the dress commonly worn by the Chinese in this country, and had their caes neatly arranged on their craniums. Lee You ucted as spokesman. Both he and Bund said that they were 18 years of age. Lee Ing. said that he was 29 years of age or thereabouts, and he looked much older man either of the others. party had, according to their declarations, been in this country about seven years. They had been engaged in the laundry business and are still. Lee You said that he was a "boss to sherman." The others are journeymen washcrinen. Lee You was the only one of the three who spoke or understood English casily, but even he was floored by a simple ouestion from the clerk as to whether he and his a soriates would swear or affirm. A tall and fat Caucasian who accompanied the party said "swear," and the Chinese all echoed, "swear." When the outh was administered only Lee You appeared clearly to understand the words. The others, by watching him, learned that the proper time to kiss the book was when the clerk ended his song, and they got through without any mishap. Each signed his name to the paper in Chinese

THE ASTOR MILLIONS. John Jacob Deeds the Estate to His

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—It was unnounced in legal circles that John Jacob Astor had deeded all his property to his only son, William Waldorf, now Minister to Rome. It created a profound sensation, and old lawyers declared it another movement of the Astors not to permit the value of the immense estate to be publicly known. John is now an old man; and the story is told that the deeds are not to be recorded until after the death of John Jacob. William W. receives everything, subject to a pension of $100,000 per annum to his father during life. Two objects are said to be accomplished; the estate will not be divided among different heirs. Secondly, no litigation over a will can ever come into a court by which the value of the estate would be discovered. There are unquestionably other branches of the tamily, which, if a will leaving all to one son were made, might enter a contest. It has always been an idea of John Jacob to practically entail his property and have the estate descend intact from generation to generation, as in England. The present John Jacob Astor's father died thirty-five years ago. At that time the estate was wert's about $30.000,000 or $40,000,000. mainly unpr ductive. Its value is now about $70,000,000.

Comey Island. NEW YORK, Sept. 6 .- Coney Island is at present the paradise of gamblers of this city, Brooklyn, and Phitadelphia. They seem to have suddenly swooped down over the beach, and to have turned a certain part of it into a veritable tiger's lair. The games that were at the opening of the season small and seelnded have blossomed into large ones, and entrances to them are unguarded. There is no longer any barrier to strangers. The consequence is that the gambling houses are thronged day and night, and the Island is becoming an American Baden-Baden.

A RUNAWAY WIFE.

Captured After Several Years Wandering.

READING, Sept. 6 .- A sewing-machine agent named Lyons and a woman professing to be his wife were arrested here by a Boston detective. Samuel Seiders, who accompanied the detective, claims that the woman is his wife and that she ran away with Lyons three years ago from Springfield. They took a two-year-old daughter of Seider's with them, and he has followed them from place to place, but until now was unable to find them. The detective, Mr. Sciders and the woman left Reading, leaving Lyons here. Seiders says if he finds his daughter all right he will let the woman go where she pleases, as he only wishes the child.

A Devoted Mother's Death.

ERIE, Sept. 6 .- Mrs. Lena Heyl, wife of Peter Heyl, sacrifieed her life while trying to save her old child. It was in danger of being run over by a passenger train on the Luke Shore & Michigan Southern railway, when she rushed across the tracks, and, while so doing, was struck by an engine coming from the opposite direction. She was instantly killed.

Jesse Lewis, Johnson Lewis, Jack Lewis, Willis Young, Henry Robinson and William Combs, all colored, were arrested Thursday by Constable C. L. Dawson, on a warrant charging them with unlawful gaming. The evidence disclosed the fact that they had been "shooting craps." They had their trial before Magistrate John L. Grant, who fined them ten doll rs and costs. They all paid or replevied their fines, except Combs, who was sent to jail.

THE board of council have shown a want of back-bone that is extremely pitiable. They dodge the hog question by submitting it to the popular vote because they are afraid of their hog owning constituents. They know when it comes to be voted upon the lawyer will be afraid of his hog owning client, the doctor of his hog owning patient, the merchant of his hog owning enstomers, and the citizen of his hog owning neighbor, and so
